

Bank of America and MIGH

The Mexican Institute of Greater Houston (MIGH) is honored to have been selected by Bank of America to enrich our partnership strengthening our ability to train workers as they learn new skills and enhance their job readiness.

This positive collaboration began in the early 2000s. Now several years later MIGH continues providing critical assistance to our students and their small companies. They learn with us practical technical/computer workforce skills so that they can find better paying jobs in the modern business environment or to improve their business success.

The Mexican Institute of Greater Houston (MIGH) is gratified to continue assisting Hispanic and other minority adults to improve the Greater Houston community while elevating their earnings as we enter this dynamic phase of economic recovery in our region.

BANK OF AMERICA

“Through computer literacy instruction in the Hispanic community, Mexican Institute of Greater Houston is accomplishing incredible things, working tirelessly to serve the most vulnerable across our city. We all have a role to play in helping move communities forward, and by supporting local nonprofits as they deploy resources and build programs to address urgent needs, our Bank of America team remains committed to the people and communities we serve,” said Hong Ogle, President, Bank of America Houston.
